INCOGNITO

There are many puzzling things about the sudden interest of the Duke of Windsor in housing, but none more puzzling than something the secretary of the interior, Mr. Ickes, has just said.

He was telling about an inquiry from the duke's representative for information on outstanding projects. Mr. Ickes said somewhat tartly that he replied with a "collect cable." He continued, "I understand the duke is coming over incognito, and I would not want to embarrass him. We are not handling his publicity."

Until someone explains this more fully, the prospect is bound to build up suspense. That man who rings the doorbell and says he wants to take a peek about the house to see if everything's all right may really be the Duke of Windsor underneath his mustache and cap.

Or that young woman who goes all over the building under the pretense of being a magazine salesman may be the former Wallis Warfield in person. It looks like about the most exciting holiday season in years.

MORE PORRIDGE PLEASE

A railroad freight rate hike on a selected list of commodities, though it may seem of little direct importance to the general public, is a detail in the rising cost of living.

To shippers of the affected commodities, higher rates granted by the interstate commerce commission mean cost adjustments that may entail higher prices. To users of commodities, the higher rates will mean increased living expenses sooner or later.

Railroads explain that they need even higher rates than the interstate commerce commission has given them, and that they will institute proceedings at once to that purpose. Their costs, too, are rising. The only way they can meet them is to do what everybody else does under similar circumstances, raise prices. But railroads are under direct government supervision; their price boosts must be approved before they can collect them from the public. Flexibility has been taken out of their operation.

It is just about the clearest picture anyone could want of the complexity of government regulation—with the railroads asking for more porridge please, and the government trying to decide how to parcel out the porridge without offending anyone. The distribution must be made without starving the railroads into a condition of undernourishment which would have an unfavorable effect on the entire country.

The whole thing calls for a grade of intelligence, of honesty and of foresight higher than has been discovered so far in Homo Sapiens.

The increased deficit estimate, of course will merely require a little more attention to be given to the job of balancing the budget next year.—Indianapolis News.

These are the days when a normal man is glad he doesn't have to live in a trailer, but can sit by the fireplace.—Detroit Free Press.

A school for teaching birds how to fly is in operation at Sussex, England. How such an ideal federal project ever escaped this country will require explanation.—Chicago Tribune.

In considering Senator LaFollette's plan to increase income taxes and apply them to more people some thought might be given to the old problem of the goose and the golden egg.—Indianapolis News.

An English lecturer in this country says: "Americans don't know how to use their leisure." He makes the mistake of judging all Americans by those who attend his lectures.

Here is a magazine writer quoted as saying: "Women in increasing numbers are taking up law." Even so, they'll never be able to take up as much of it as they have laid down.

Another time when the honeymoon is over is when the life of the Duke and Duchess is reduced from columns of straight reading matter to an occasional paragraph.—Jack Warwick.

Perhaps the Japanese army was not so much overrated so much as the Chinese army was underrated.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—New York's scrappiest citizen is undoubtedly the recently ousted Jimmy Johnston of Madison Square Garden. Ever since he came over from Ireland he has been strutting about with a chip on his shoulder—and adding fireworks to the world of boxing.

A bantam with an always tightly clenched cigar, he puts everybody on the defensive. I have known him casually for years, but when I meet and pass the usual salutation I always rather expect him to bristle up and inquire: "Want to make something of it?"

He has been in a constant row with the Garden management and his contempt for the Boxing Commission, individually and collectively, will turn the air blue at any time. Sports writers like him, for he has been a peg upon which to hang many bright yarns.

Johnston, in leaving the Garden, will promote boxing on his own. His particular star is the nimble Bob Pastor. Nobody knows the fight game better and none has been more successful in picking the winner in big championship bouts the past ten years.

City slicker: Dwight Fiske is reputedly paid around $1,000 a week by a fashionable snack bar for singing—or rather talking—songs not far removed from ballads of the bordello. Glossily dinner jacketed, his audiences are chiefly of Cholly Knickerbocker's haute monde, who frequently, as sophisticated as they are and as Dorothy Parker conscious, giggle in a sort of off-key confusion at the double entendre. Fiske is the debonaire Gold Coast version of the tieless, pasty-faced fellow with the drooping cigaret we used to see crouching over the piano in the shuttered house across the track giving "Room 202" the business!

Dog shop owners are ever pleased to permit responsible dog fanciers to take home any pet that strikes their fancy for a few days to see how it fits in the household routine. Almost invariably taking the dog home clinches the sale. Not many dog lovers can be around one 48 hours without becoming attached. I ran afoul of such an experience recently, hunting a companion for an old established dog and coming upon a handsome year-old Boston, peppy, affectionate and perfectly streamlined. But due to his short nose, as often happens, his breathing was labored. Yet I decided to take him on trial a few days. But after 24 hours I returned him hastily, for he kept the household awake snoring. Another 24 hours and he would have had me, even though he out-wheezed a sick calliope.

Now and then I go up to Harlem's Savoy ballroom with Henry Sell to watch the colored dancers essay the Lindy Hop, the Susie Q, the Shag and the more recent Big Apple. Around midnight the dancing takes on something of the barbaric frenzy of the deep jungle—providing an interesting study in atavism. Young bucks and gals weave, swing, sway and roll eyes much like the rituals of a tribal dance. And their endurance is astonishing. They will dance as long as the music plays without showing slightest fatigue. At the Savoy there is little drinking and few demure of the dance halls—most of the dancers are working girls getting exhilaration out of sheer joy in dancing.

I know no one in the Manhattan scene who plucks more genuine enjoyment out of living than Col. Joseph Hartfield. A celebrated international lawyer and head of an important legal firm, he is a bachelor who knows everybody and is always present at every important affair. A native of Henderson, Ky.—home of Audubon—Col. Hartfield is a teetotaler but one of the town's most distinguished gourmets and almost nightly in one of the high grade restaurants is a generous host. He is also a regular first nighter and patron of the big athletic events, and if memory serves donated the football stadium to his alma mater, the University of Virginia. He is a frequent visitor to European capitals, where he is as well known as he is in New York. Another well-known New Yorker from Henderson, Ky., is the photographer Ewing Galloway.

Memories: The biggest snowball bush in town... Major Scarberry's faded blue, short-caped overcoat with the thrilling bullet hole in the shoulder.

THE STARS SAY:

For Wednesday, October 27

Disturbed and doubtful conditions seem to affect the affairs of this day, judging by both lunar and mutual aspects. Treachery or duplicity, with some underhanded work to be guarded against, is shown. Sudden journeys or abrupt change of plans may bring benefits if handled wisely.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of unrest and possibly a sudden revamping of the plans, with commotion and change, removal or travel. If they are handled carefully, these should result profitably, but be alert to deception and underhanded methods, particularly concerning strangers.

A child born on this day may be somewhat restive, changeable and given to a sudden uprooting of itself and its plans. It may be affectionate, likable and may make many happy friendships in its private life.

Song Writers Do Things Oddly

There are few vocations carried on in more unorthodox fashion than that of song writing. There is little rhyme or reason to many of the creations from Tin Pan Alley. Irving Caesar immortalized the Swannee river without having ever seen it, and later found it was only a muddy creek. Joe Young, another successful composer, has repeatedly eulogized Dixie in popular songs but was born in the Bronx and was never south of the Battery. Billie Hill, who is a dyed-in-the-wool New Englander, is credited with such stirring cowboy ballads as "The Last Roundup" and "Wagon Wheels." Buddy De Sylva and Gerald Marks are other leading tunesmiths whose compositions seldom reflect their own personal courses or professional careers.

BREAST-FED BABY

A well-known baby specialist recently and wisely said: "The mother who nurses her infant saves herself money, work and the baby's health." There is no denying that the breast-fed infant is almost sure to have fewer health problems than the infant artificially fed.

Of course, breast feeding is often impossible, and, in spite of its many advantages, bottle feeding must be used. But when the breast can be used, no other method should be considered.

An occasional young mother in these modern times shrinks breast feeding because she regards it as a difficult and unnecessary burden. Yet, if the schedule is well planned and as soon as possible other nourishment is added, breast feeding is not difficult. Because of its great benefit to the child, it is well worth whatever effort it demands.

Instruction Needed
Young mothers should be instructed in proper nursing technique and the best possible care of the breasts. If this is done, many of the tedious aspects of nursing can be avoided. The mother should be taught the need of washing her own hands before touching the nipples. The whole breast should be cleaned with warm water after the nursings and carefully dried with sterile gauze. The nipples and surrounding parts should be covered between nursings with a piece of sterile gauze.

Be careful about the care of the breasts. If the nipples become irritated and painful, consult with your doctor. Do not use any ointment or salve unless your doctor has prescribed it.

Schedule of Feeding
The baby should be placed at the breast every four hours, for five feedings during the course of the day. But the exact procedure must be determined by the doctor. He will plan the schedule which will depend largely upon the progress the infant makes. If the baby does not gain in weight, or fails to gain at least five ounces a week, it may be necessary to give more frequent feedings.

As I have indicated, additional feedings may be given to the infant. Fruit juices, such as orange, tomato or prune juices, may be given as early as the first month. Start with one teaspoonful and gradually increase the amount, so that by the third month a tablespoonful is given twice a day.

At a later age the infant may be given a supplementary bottle, and strained foods may be added to the diet. Your doctor will outline just what foods may be given.

Answers to Health Queries
L. N. R. Q.—What is the cause of "cold sores" appearing on the lips? How should they be treated?

A.—"Cold sores" may accompany indigestion. It is quite a common thing to have this condition during the course of influenza, pneumonia, and other infectious diseases accompanied by high fever. They may also follow the common cold. For further particulars restate your question and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send an addressed, stamped envelope with their questions. Address all letters to Dr. Copeland, New York City.

CHAPTER XXVII

That was certainly a bombshell. Foxcroft sat up straight and stared at her. Sergeant Harper looked first at her, then at us.

"What's that?" Nola Morin asked more quietly again. "I asked you why I should kill my own father."

"Who says that?" Sergeant Harper asked.

"You are no authority?" Nola asked.

"Mr. Monteth was a bachelor," I remarked.

"So what? That's happened, isn't it?"

"You're getting brazen again. She was beginning to show signs of worry. He was thinking of Mary and of scandal."

"You are trying to pull a black-mail stunt, claiming that a man is dead, and unable to defend himself, is your father. Of course the fact that he left millions didn't influence your sarcasm didn't seem to bother her."

"You're not so hot as a lawyer, are you? I come there before he died? I pay good money to get there so that I could have a talk with him? Is that waiting until he is dead?"

"And when he laughed at you, because of your claim, you got sore and killed him!"

"It was Harper who said this. I did not kill him. I just asked you if you could believe that I would kill my own father. When you questioned me, I didn't see why I should tell you the truth, then. In fact, I was so rattled and worried I didn't know what to do, but I wasn't going to tell you the truth then."

"You were sparring for time to say something believable," Foxcroft said, as if talking to himself.

"I told you the first half-reasonable cause I could think of, that I came down to ask him for a raise."

"Of course that sounded foolish. I came down to tell him that he was my father and that it was time he did something for me."

"Did you think he would believe you?"

"He would when I showed him the proof."

"You have proof?" Foxcroft asked explosively.

"I'll say. Do you think anyone would believe me without proof?"

"How old are you?" Harper asked.

"He lowered his voice and seemed to be rather impressed by my answer."

"Twenty-four—I was born in 1912, January ten."

"And you waited around all these years before thinking about asking your father to help you?"

"Don't be silly. I only found out that a few months ago."

"You could have written to him—asked a lawyer," I said, "rather than go to all that trouble to bribe a position in the house."

"This way looked better. Why pay a lawyer a lot? I have the proofs. By facing him I would impress him better, and I could tell him a few things that would convince him. That was my plan. I'd been trying for two weeks to get him to let me see a second floor maid."

"He was shot at sunrise if she goes down to the first floor. That was my first chance, and what happened?"

"Somebody killed him," Foxcroft said, with meaning.

"What happens is that I find him asleep. I didn't want to wake him up. I didn't want him grouchy. So I went back to wait another chance. Then somebody kills him."

"And now?" Foxcroft asked.

"And now I have to get a settlement from the estate, quietly if I can, but in court if I have to. I know about such things. I'm a natural child of Gerard Monteth and I have a legal right to some of those millions."

"We regarded her for a moment. She lighted another cigarette and actually smiled at us."

"I didn't intend to tell anyone except the lawyer for the estate. I was willing to keep it quiet. In fact, I'm not exactly proud of it, but I intend to have my rights. If you hadn't tried to give me a third degree and railroad me behind bars I'd never have told."

"How are you going about it?" Foxcroft asked.

"I'm not telling you. Just lock me up and find out what a fine sensation I have for the newspapers—you'll know all the proof then."

"Where are you going tomorrow?"

"To New York, but I'm coming back."

"And do what?" Harper persisted.

"See the Monteth lawyers, of course. I'm betting they won't want any publicity."

"Miss Morin," I asked, "where did you get the name, Morin?"

"Stage name."

"Why that?"

"My real name—my mother's name—was no good for the stage."

"Is your mother living?"

"She died ten years ago."

"What was her name?"

"You don't have to know. I tell you I expect to get a quiet settlement, no court case. Why tell my poor mother's name?"

"Was it Nola Lutzmann?" I asked.

"Her eyes opened wide and she choked a little."

"How—how do you know that?"

"I am asking you a question, Miss Morin. Was your mother's name Nola Lutzmann?"

"If the case goes to court you'll find out."

"Mrs. Nola Lutzmann, of Zurich," I said.

"We all noted her startled expression. It was only for a fleeting moment. Then she said, 'Unless they settle with me quietly it will all come out and be plenty public, whether my mother came from Zurich or Timbuctoo.'"

Sergeant Harper glanced at Foxcroft and myself sharply, then stood up.

"We hoped you might remember some little thing that would help us, Miss Morin. Sorry. As for your claims—we have nothing to do with that. If you prove that Gerard Monteth was your father we shall be inclined to believe your story of why you tried to see him on the library porch, and that you turned back and left him sleeping."

"She smiled."

"That's more like it—thanks. What's next?"

"Whatever you wish," Harper replied.

"Then I'll be going. If you want to keep what I have told you a secret, that's fine with me. No need to make it public if we don't have to."

"Quite right," Foxcroft agreed quickly.

Nola Morin walked out. Harper and I lighted pipes. Foxcroft went to the window and watched.

"She's heading for the bus," he said, turning back to us, "now what the devil do you think of it?"

"Either she is giving it to us straight, or else she is rigging a big swindle. She may be right, at that."

"I can't tell," Foxcroft said.

"That can easily be checked up. Wally, I told him, 'What?' I asked the sergeant, 'Is your plan?' I never saw any indications of wings on him. He had many girl friends. There were some days in Paris, and he found quarters for her there. He admitted seeing her in New York after that."

"Well?"

"I'm worried, Mr. Stevenson, worried. Do you find out what her proof is. If it is genuine, we will make a secret settlement with her—gladly."

(To Be Continued)

"Indicating that she has found something that convinces her of this relationship. It may not prove anything, but she seems to believe it."

"You may be right. If not, she is one colossal bluffer."

After breakfast I went up and found Mrs. Stapleton. As I drove in I recognized one of Sergeant Harper's men. I guessed that he was waiting for Nola Morin's departure, to tip Harper by telephone.

"What's new?" Mrs. Stapleton asked. She was having breakfast. A late one, out in the sunshine. Davidson was near and one of the maids was at the table.

"The day," I cried, cheerfully, and winked. Being curious she hurried through her breakfast and we walked down to the bench by the sundial.

As I told her all that Nola Morin had told us, she first expressed indignation. Then she listened quietly.

"What do you think—I mean, honestly think, aside from a natural desire to indignantly deny any such possibility?" I asked.

"What do you think?"

"You can't pull that Yankee trick of asking a question to stall off another, but I think it is quite possible."

"Naturally. Let me see—Gerard was twenty-five then. I never saw any indications of wings on him. He had many girl friends. There were some days in Paris, and he found quarters for her there. He admitted seeing her in New York after that."

"Well?"

"I'm worried, Mr. Stevenson, worried. Do you find out what her proof is. If it is genuine, we will make a secret settlement with her—gladly."

Where Will You Spend The Winter?

... now is the time to decide

Will it be in your easy chair—with all the comforts of home—comfort of clean, even, healthful heat—controlled by the tip of your finger from your living room ...

OR

will you spend most of the time in the basement starting furnace fires—and playing nurse maid to a fuel eating monster that either gives off too much heat or not enough regardless of your efforts?

Gas heat for your home will allow you to enjoy life all winter long—and you will be surprised how little gas heat costs.

This new gas burner will fit into your present furnace or boiler and solve your heating problem.

Hail 150 Years of Progress In Higher Learning

CUTLER HALL, OLDEST COLLEGE BUILDING IN THE NORTHWEST TERRITORY

MANASSEH CUTLER, A FOUNDER OF OHIO UNIVERSITY

THE MCGUFFEY ELMS, PLANTED BY WILLIAM HOLMES MCGUFFEY

ATHENS—Higher education in the Northwest Territory had its real beginning on Oct. 27, 1787, when a land purchase contract was signed by members of the Ohio Company of Associates and the national congress. In this contract provision was made for the establishment of the first university west of the Alleghenies.

The university provided for in this document is Ohio university at Athens, where, tomorrow a date designated as Ohio University day in the big Northwest Territory celebration, will be observed the anniversary of 150 years of progress in higher learning in the area west of the Alleghenies. Sharing in the day's exercises will be representatives of colleges and universities throughout the six states that comprise the territory.

At the local celebration, Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, professor emeritus of history at Harvard University, and one of America's leading scholars, will be the principal speaker.

Various Factors Figure In

The story of Ohio university and the beginning of advanced education in the new frontier country of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, is the story of the Ordinance of 1787, the Congress of the Confederation, the Ohio Company of Associates and a shrewd gentleman known as Dr. Manasseh Cutler, according to the statements of Prof. Thomas N. Hoover, Ohio university historian and authority on Ohio history.

Along with the adoption of the Ordinance of 1787, there went a contract between the Ohio company and Congress for the purchase of land northwest of the Ohio river. The company had already been organized at the famous "Bunch of Grapes" tavern, Boston, on March 1, 1783, and had as its leaders such famous men as Cutler, General Rufus Putnam, Winthrop Sargent and Nathan Dane.

Through the efforts of Dr. Cutler, Congress donated to the use of the future citizens of the region to be settled two townships of land as a perpetual endowment for a university.

After the settlement of Marietta in 1788, plans for establishing a new college in the frontier land began. Because of continued Indian wars, however, it was not until 1799 that General Rufus Putnam and his band of surveyors proceeded to fix with compass and chain the boundaries of the pioneer campus.

Planning Organization

Dr. Cutler, in the meantime, was busy planning the organization of the institution. The charter was modeled in a great measure after that of Yale, of which institution Dr. Cutler was an alumnus. This first charter, after many amendments, was passed by the territorial legislature and approved by Arthur St. Clair, the governor of the Northwest Territory, on Jan. 9, 1802. The name of the institution, according to the wishes of Dr. Cutler, was to be the American university.

On Feb. 18, 1804, the Ohio legislature passed an act "establishing a university in the town of Athens." The corporate name was changed to Ohio university and the state assumed the trusteeship of the institution.

In June of the same year the organization was completed at the first meeting of the trustees, over which Governor Edward Tiffin presided, after having ridden horseback from Chillicothe, a distance of some 60 miles over wilderness trails. At a later meeting the Reverend Jacob Lindley was elected as the first president, and a building having been erected, on June 1, 1808, the first college of the "Old Northwest" opened its doors to the reception of students, with three young men appearing.

The first commencement occurred in 1815, with John Hunter and Thomas Ewing as graduates. Ewing later was twice a member of a presidential cabinet and twice Senator from Ohio.

From 1839 to 1843, the affairs of the university were administered by William Holmes McGuffey, author of the famous readers. The row of stately elm trees that fronts the

P.T.A. MEMBERS HOLD MEETING

Leetonia - Washingtonville Group Attends Monthly Rally

LEETONIA, Oct. 26. — The monthly meeting of the Parent-Teacher association held Monday evening at the Washingtonville building with C. J. Stewart, the president, in charge.

Joseph Justice, principal of the Washingtonville building, had charge of the program presented by students of that building. The association gave $11 to the board of education to buy equipment for the stage in the new high school building. The first card party of the year will be held Tuesday, Nov. 9, at the Home Economics room of the North Side building.

O. R. Pore, inspector from the state department of education at Columbus, who had inspected the schools Monday with County Supt. W. E. Roberts, was the main speaker. The next meeting will be held at the North Side building.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Narragon were called to Kelley's Island, Monday by the illness of Mrs. Narragon's mother.

Mrs. Janet Stambaugh of Youngstown is visiting her daughter-in-law, Mrs. H. M. Stambaugh, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Early were Sunday guests of Mr. Early's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Early at Columbus.

Mrs. J. E. Langford and children, Larry and Ruth of East Palestine are visiting Mrs. Langford's mother, Mrs. Charles Buckley.

Mrs. Wilbur Stratton will enter the Youngstown City hospital Tuesday for observation.

Emmett Fritz of Pittsburgh was a weekend guest of his mother, Mrs. Mary Fitz.

3,000 Enrollment

Today, Ohio university has an enrollment of over three thousand students as contrasted to the beginning class of three back in 1808. Cutler Hall, however, erected in 1817, still stands in the very center of the campus and is the oldest college edifice northwest of the Ohio river. Students on the campus are still summoned to classes by the bell in the old Cutler tower, and its clock is still consulted by young men and women as they stroll across the historic grounds.

Cutler Hall is now surrounded by modern buildings, but Cutler tower still stands as a monument to 150 years of progress in higher education in the once frontier land of America.

DERBY WINNER TO RUN AGAIN

War Admiral Entered in Churchill Handicap at Laurel, Md.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 26—War Admiral, the three-year-old champion, got a chance today to show whether or not he could pick up his victory streak from the point where an injured hoof forced him from competition nearly five months ago.
Glen Riddle farm's speedy little brown son of Man O' War was entered against ten other campaigners in the $1200 Churchill handicap, fifth and feature event on the day's program here.
It was the first time the winner of the Kentucky derby, the Preakness and the Belmont stakes had been entered in a race since the Admiral injured a hoof in the Belmont last June 5.
He has grown a new hoof,
worked out satisfactorily, if not sensationally, and been pronounced fit. Charley Kurt-singer was assigned to ride the Admiral in today's mile and a sixteenth test for three-year-olds and upwards.
He was assigned only 104 pounds because conditions of the event call for three-year-olds to carry only 112 pounds with an eight-pound allowance if they have not won $700
since October 1.
M. Vehon's Threadneedle and Shandon farm's Evergold, two of the Admiral's older rivals, were assigned 115 pounds each. J. A.
Manfuso's Aneroid, another highly rated competitor, had to carry 113 pounds.
STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—Pennsylvania State College's school for

Chicago Host to Annual 4-H Club Convention

Another year of industry and initiative comes to a climax for more than 1,000,000 members of 4-H clubs when their champions gather at Chicago in November for the annual national competitions.
Each year in conjunction with the International Livestock show, these outstanding junior agriculturalists, winners of their home state eliminations, vie in a legion of classes for top awards. There are more than 100,000 clubs in the United States, besides branch organizations in Alaska, Puerto Rico and Hawaii. The movement was started about 30 years ago and is now subsidized and supervised by the federal government. Although the average age of members is less than 15, their earnings average more than $20,000,000 a year and their work of real benefit.

BLUE DEVILS POINT FOR VICTORY OVER QUAKERS

California's Golden Bears Again Rated No. 1 In Nation-Wide Football Poll

LISBON ELEVEN HITTING SALEM AT RIGHT TIME

Quakers Ripe For Upset After Impressive Win Last Week

The football minded citizens of the Columbiana county seat are hoping for just one thing this week.

They'd like to see Coach Phil Biele's Lisbon High school Blue Devils whip the pants off Salem High school's Quakers out at Reilly stadium Friday night.

And, without a doubt, Biele's eleven is aiming for this very thing.

Lisbon is hitting the Quakers at just the right time. Coach Carl Schroeder's charges have just emerged from an impressive 26 to 0 victory over Wells-ville's Bengals and, with this to encourage over-confidence, are ripe for an upset, unless they take the coming game for the important contest it is.

The Quakers looked powerful in their win over Wellsville and it's a natural reaction that they should feel an air of superiority over their smaller opponent this week.

But, funny things happen in this football business, and if there's any small team in the county right now with a chance of up-setting the Quakers, that team is Lisbon.

The Blue Devils didn't get off to a good start this season, but of late they have been showing steady improvement. Coach Biele's eleven lost to East Liverpool and Minerva and tied Louisville before they finally hit their stride three weeks ago and trampled East Palestine, Sebring and Boardman in succession.

Lisbon defeated Sebring, 39 to 6, and this fact alone is enough to cause Coach Schroeder plenty of worry since his team was able to conquer Sebring by a score of only 13 to 0.

Last Saturday, Lisbon played without the services of its star backfield performer, Howard Nace, but was still strong enough to spank Boardman, 8 to 2.

Nace, the first string fullback, will be back in the lineup this week after recovering from the leg injury which kept him out of the Boardman game. He is a capable punter and passer and a dangerous ball-carrier, especially on the wide end sweeps Lisbon features in its offensive attack.

Biele is not gloomy over his team's chances with the Quakers. He feels that his charges are strong enough to give the Red and Black a stiff battle, and believes that if the Quakers are ball-totter, Ollie Olexa, is stopped, the Blue Devils have a good chance of winning.

SEEKS ANSWER FOR AAU MOVE

Queries Why American Athletes Didn't Tour Germany

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—While such matters as the elimination of medals in favor of yards and miles in track events, the establishing of regional championships, and resident rules are the big questions now listed for the annual convention of the Amateur Athletic union at Boston Nov. 13-15, a new question has bobbed up which may cause considerable disturbance among the delegates.

That is what answer is to be made to a communication from the International Amateur Athletic Federation asking why the A. A. U. had refused to send its touring athletes to Germany last summer.

While officials both here and in Europe vehemently denied yesterday that the I. A. A. U. contemplated any punitive action against the A. A. U., one A. A. U. official disclosed there had been correspondence on the subject and indicated that no official reply had yet been made.

The official said he doubted if anything could be done before the annual meeting although the I. A. A. U. asked for both an explanation and a change of attitude before Oct. 18.

BOWLING NEWS

Two new high scores were set in the American Bowling league at the Masonic temple alleys last night as the Ohio Edison continued to hold the circuit's first place position.

Arthur Smith of the Edison quintet established a new individual single game mark when he rolled 247. The other record was set by the Ohio Edison team by rolling 918 in gaining one of its two wins over Mullins Press Room.

Three victories over the Electric Furnace moved Reich's Sports into second place in the league standings.

No changes were made in the leaders in the Quaker City loop at the Grate Recreation alleys last night. The Colonial Billiards continued to hold first place by winning two out of three from Economy V-S's.

BUCKEYES RANK 8TH IN BALLOT ON GRID TEAMS

Pittsburgh Is Classed Second Behind California Bears

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—California's Golden Bears, by a landslide vote of endorsement among the country's newspaper experts, remain the nation's No. 1 college football team for the second successive week.

Following their smashing victory over Southern California, the Bears were accorded top place in 48 of the 57 "first ten" selections contributed to this week's Associated Press national ranking roundup and tabulated today. Last week only 24 rated California at the head of the class, but the feeling now is pronounced that the Bears are moving rapidly toward Pacific Coast honors, including the Rose Bowl nomination.

This week's poll was marked by a big shake-up in the lower brackets, but the "top five" remained the same, except for Pittsburgh's displacement of Alabama in the No. 2 spot. Here's the tabulation, scoring each list on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis, and with first place votes indicated in brackets:

First Ten	Points
1. California (48)	556
2. Pittsburgh (3)	408
3. Alabama	337
4. Minnesota (2)	321
5. Yale (2)	278
6. Baylor (1)	226
7. Vanderbilt (1)	167
8. Ohio State	146
9. Dartmouth	139
10. Fordham	122

Second ten: 11. Nebraska, 121; 12. Auburn, 85; 13. Duke, 84; 14. Santa Clara, 33; 15. North Carolina, 16; 16. Villanova, 13; 17. Louisiana State, 12; 18. Holy Cross and Detroit, tied at 9 each; 20. Arkansas, 8. (Colorado and Army received three votes each, Texas Christian and Northwestern two votes each.)

Four newcomers in the "top ten" are Baylor, Vanderbilt, Ohio State and Dartmouth, all of whom registered decisive sectional triumphs Saturday. Vanderbilt, conqueror of previously unscored-upon Louisiana State, made the biggest jump, from a tie for 20th to seventh place. Baylor, sensation of the Southwest conference, leaped from 15th to sixth, Dartmouth from 18th to ninth. Ohio State was rated 12th on the national list last week.

Louisiana State dropped from sixth to 17th, while Northwestern, victim of Ohio State, fell from seventh to the "also ran" company. Nebraska and Duke, although among Saturday's winners, skidded to the second ten. Auburn's wrecking crew jumped from a tie for 20th to 12th and seems likely to "crash" the first ten at the pace it has been traveling for the last two weeks.

Yale's higher rating reflects the favorite's role that the E.H.s likely will occupy over Dartmouth at New Haven this Saturday in the week's feature "Ivy league" match. Two other pairings this week among the ranking teams involve Villanova and Detroit. Fordham and North Carolina. Based on their positions in the poll, Villanova and Fordham are the expert choices, although they will be playing on rival grounds.

Scoring Ace Gives Hiram College Grid Attention

Bob Bloom Tied For Lead In State Scoring Race With Ralph Patton of Muskingum Eleven

BY FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26—Two new leaders, barging along at better than a touchdown-per-game pace, staged a neck-and-neck race today for Ohio's collegiate football individual scoring honors—and for the first time in more than a decade an athlete representing little Hiram college was right out in front.

Bob Bloom, Hiram's classy sophomore quarterback from Albion, N. Y., and Ralph (Beanie) Patton, Muskingum's senior left halfback, fought their way ahead of the pack Saturday as each scored two touchdowns and finished up the week with totals of 36 points.

Patton is a living example of that "local boy makes good" scenario, for he was born and reared in New Concord, where Muskingum is situated.

Johnny Lucas, Western Reserve's scintillating sophomore, failed to score as the Red Cats beat Boston U. Saturday, and Metzger of Miami drew up alongside him at 30 points as he pushed over the lone Redskins touchdown against Toledo. Lucas held the top spot all alone a week ago.

Bloom, playing his second year as a result of the absence of a freshman rule at Hiram, almost single-handedly pulled the Terriers from the worst losing streak an Ohio team ever experienced. Hiram had lost 17 games in a row until Bloom cracked over two touchdowns against Grove City this year to win by 13 to 7. He followed up by scoring two against Allegheny and two more Saturday as Hiram defeated Thiel 19 to 12. The Hiram team has scored 58 points, Bloom getting 36. Last year he scored 18 of the 24 Terrier points. He's five feet 10, weighs 168, and does all the Hiram punting and passing, as well as most of the running and scoring. Patton is the same height as Bloom, but weighs 175. Also a triple-threat, he wound up with 50 points a year ago as he led the Muskies scoring.

Zemla of Akron dashed into a tie with Kelly of Dayton for the goal-after-touchdown lead Saturday as he kicked the extra point against Baldwin-Wallace, the two headliners having 10 each.

Dowdell of Wilberforce and Ford of Ohio Northern kicked field goals Saturday, the Polar Bear's boot providing the victory margin over Bowling Green. Feeny of Defiance and Cushman of Wooster had field goals to their credit in earlier contests, the spurge of three-pointers being the greatest in recent years.

Two dozen gridgers are very much in the race for individual laurels, that number having scored three or more touchdowns. About 30 others have two markers to their credit.

Here are the leaders, and how they got that way:

Player	Points
Bloom, Hiram	5 6 0 0 36
Patton, Muskingum	5 5 0 0 36
Lucas, W. Reserve	5 5 0 0 30

GOPHERS, IRISH FIGHT ON WAY TO TOP AGAIN

Defeat Would End Hopes Of Either Team For Grid Prestige

By EARL HILLIGAN

CHICAGO, Oct. 26—Minnesota and Notre Dame will be fighting Saturday for the right-of-way on "the road back."

Their battle at Minneapolis, expected to attract 65,000 spectators, may be one of the most stubbornly fought games of the season, for defeat would smash to bits the hopes of both elevens to regain national prestige lost through slow starts this year.

Both teams are on the victory trail, Minnesota as a result of its decisive win over Michigan and Notre Dame through its fighting, last period conquest of Navy. Minnesota, which went through a long drill featured by passing and punting formations yesterday, is favored to win. The Irish are in a position to upset the dope, and the performance of Jack McCarthy and Bunny McCormick against Navy undoubtedly is causing Bernie Bierman of the Gophers plenty of worry.

Coach Bierman has ordered secret practice for the Gophers the remainder of the week. His squad is expected to be at top strength for the Irish, who worked on defense.

Ranking next to the Irish-Gopher battle in interest will be the Northwestern-Wisconsin clash at Madison. The Wildcats will be out to take their defeat by Ohio State out on the Badgers, but Wisconsin threw a scare into the Lynn Waldorf team last year and may do it again. Northwestern studied movies of its game with the Buckeyes yesterday as Wisconsin worked on new pass plays.

Casey Stengel Comes Back To Majors To Manage Bees

Former Brooklyn Manager Given Job On Boston National League Club By Bob Quinn

By BERNARD FREEMAN

BOSTON, Oct. 26—Bob Quinn, president of the Boston Bees, picked up a telephone in his office, called Omaha, Texas, and presto! Casey Stengel was back in the major leagues.

"Listen, Case, want to come with us next year?" bellowed Quinn yesterday as a roomful of newspapermen listened in.

"Certainly, I'd be delighted, thank you very much," came the reply—and Stengel who received $15,000 last year for not managing the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Theater Attractions

Warren William and Gladys George in a scene from "Madame X," at the State Wednesday and Thursday

Gladys George is starred in "Madame X," which will be the attraction at the State Wednesday and Thursday.

The story of "Madame X" follows the melodramatic career of the beautiful young French governess who is given a taste of wealth and happiness only to descend down the scale of life until as an old, withered harridan she is defended against a murder charge by her own son.

Played Role Before

Gladys George, recognized as one of the outstanding emotional actresses of stage and screen, steps into a part made to order for her talents as the star of "Madame X." She is no stranger to the character, having scored one of her earliest stage successes in the play. The new screen version, however, completely modernized both as to story and psychological treatment, gives Miss George a greater scope.

Following her smash hit in "Personal Appearance," which ran for eighty-five weeks on the stage, Miss George returned to films and won a nomination for last year's Academy award for her work in "Valiant Is the Word for Carrie." She followed with the role of the Red Cross nurse in "They Gave Him a Gun" with Spencer Tracy and Franchot Tone.

John Beal plays the son, Raymond. Another graduate of the New York stage where he scored in such widely varied dramas as "Another Language," "She Loves Me Not" and "Russet Mantle," Beal established himself firmly in films as "The Little Minister" opposite Katharine Hepburn and in such pictures as "Laddie," "Break of Hearts" and "Les Miserables."

As the husband, Fleuriot, Warren William is given his second "meaty" role under his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring contract, following the part of Col. deRougemont in Jeanette MacDonald's "The Firefly." His opportunity to those he enjoyed in such earlier successes as "The Great Mouthpiece" and "Lady for a Day."

Supporting Cast

In the supporting cast are Reginald Owen in the role of Dourel, the family friend; William Henry as Hugh Farman, Jr.; Phillip Reed, who appeared opposite Tallulah Bankhead in "Reflected Glory," as Jean, first in a long list of admirers of "Madame X"; Lynne Carver, Emma Dunn, Ruth Hussey, Luis Alberni, George Zucco, Cora Witherspoon, Jonathan Hale and Adia Kuznetsoff.

The Grand offers a double bill Wednesday and Thursday: Richard Dix and Fay Wray in "It Happened in Hollywood," at behind-the-scenes-of-a-movie story; and Otto Kruger, Douglas Montgomery and Jacqueline Wells in "Counsel for Crime."

BRITISH KING IN PEACE ROLE

Opens His First Parliament From Dais In House of Lords

Their majesties smiled and bowed repeatedly from the windows of their coach. A diamond tiara glittered from Elizabeth's head. She wore a white fur cloak over her gown of regal gold lame.

The king was bareheaded during the procession. He wore the scarlet and gold uniform of a field marshal with the dark green ribbon of thistle across his tunic.

Meanwhile, Britain was believed ready to offer an 11th hour compromise plan in the hope of salvaging what remained of the 27-nation agreement to keep hands off Spain.

The nature of the plan remained obscure and in the offing of today's reassembling of the nine-power subcommittee of the non-intervention nations.

There was a definite possibility that all attempts at compromise would fail in this climactic meeting and that the 15-month try at quarantining the Spanish civil conflict would end.

An outbreak of fresh incidents in the Mediterranean spurred British efforts to find a solution.

The French heavy destroyer Milan was ordered swiftly to Fomela, Minorca, where yesterday a bombing plane attacked and set fire to submarine chaser No. 91 assigned by France to the Mediterranean anti-piracy patrol.

The attack came less than 48 hours after a seaplane had sunk the French freighter Qued Mellah in the northern Mediterranean.

France, although incensed, was believed to agree with Britain on the necessity of keeping the subcommittee alive if possible.
